Music in the air at Cambridge City Hall

Feb 4, 2009...As part of a new partnership with Wilfrid Laurier University, the Kitchener-Waterloo Symphony performed today for the City of Cambridge staff and members of the community. The program is part of a move to build community relationships. Music was performed by a Wind Octet, comprised of KW Symphony members and third year orchestral students from Laurier - a unique mentorship arrangement.

"City staff enjoyed lunchtime music and benefited by an overview of the instruments and history of the music," says Cambridge Mayor Doug Craig. As part of the Baroque and Beyond Series, the symphony will be performing at the Central Presbyterian Church Cambridge in the near future: George & Edward on April 4 and Dial M for Music on May 16, 2009.

Jim Mason, a member of the Wind Octet, presented facts and stats on the group, instruments, and benefits of a musical education.
