New Summer Programs at the Cambridge Centre for the Arts

Cambridge, Ontario. April 30, 2009...The dilemma of what to do with your children this summer just got easier with the latest announcement of summer programs at the Cambridge Centre for the Arts. Perhaps have them create a robot that makes art, become a medieval princess or even learn the technique of working on a pottery wheel?

The Cambridge Centre for the Arts is hosting a number of new and exciting programs this summer for children who want to go on a creative adventure. Over 30 programs in art, music, pottery, drama and culinary arts are available for children ages 3-14. Slated for July and August, the programs are taught by talented and enthusiastic artists, potters, actors and musicians in an expressive and imaginative environment. Summer student assistants provide additional support to artists, children and parents to make the experience exceptional.

New programs this year include:

Jungle Picnic - Make the jungle come alive with art, dance and drama

Robot Art - Create a very unique art making robot

Going Green With Your Sewing Machine - Transform old clothes and fabric into funky fashion items

The Wizard of Oz - Bring the beloved tale of Dorothy and her friends to life through creative art and role playing Programs are available in a half day or full day format. Before and after program care is also available. Registration is now open; call 519.740.4681 ext. 4376 to receive a comprehensive program flyer and to register. Sign up is also available on the City of Cambridge website through the new CORAL online registration system at www.cambridge.ca and click on the CORAL online registration link on the front page. More information on summer programs is available on the new Cambridge Centre for the Arts website at www.cambridgecentreforthearts.ca.
